

Coaching Services Overview

Professional, personal instruction for executives, individuals, groups, and events.

Executives can use personal coaching to help them meet leadership expectations. Managers and other key staff can use coaching to refine presentation skills. Often, entire teams need a professional to evaluate conference pitches and slides. And, without notice, events pop up that require immediate assistance. If only there were one source for everything. Good news—there is. PowerSpeaking offers coaching services for your entire organization's needs, both in person or virtually. You can get perfectly tailored, professional guidance for executives, individual contributors, presentation teams, or event preparation.

Executive Coaching

Grooming a high-potential performer in your organization? Looking to develop the executive presence for a key individual? Is there a major event that demands your presenters perform at a whole new level? We guide leaders through their preparation with ongoing, intensive, customized coaching. We also strengthen their ability to influence, impact and inspire audiences. We typically provide this service to the director level and above.

Individualized Coaching

Individualized coaching is designed for managers and key contributors. During these sessions, we work on content structuring, delivery style, visual aid effectiveness, and the use of stories and imagery. Individualized coaching provides the one-on-one attention that is necessary when facing a myriad of speaking challenges—from the conference room to the boardroom.

Coach Is In

If your team is preparing to speak at a conference, sales presentation, or other engagement, Coach Is In is the service you want. Here, we prepare all individuals, regardless of their level within the organization, with intensive, 1:1 coaching. We focus on content, delivery, visual aids, and transitioning between team members. This service is also available in-person and online.

Group Coaching

Group coaching is ideal for groups of individuals who deliver similar presentations. In a workshop setting, we help presenters improve content and practice their delivery for product demos, large audience talks, and team pitches. Each participant gets individual coaching and feedback. This service is only available in-person.

We pair up every individual, and every team, with just the right coach. Your staff will refine specific presentations, improve visual aid use, distinguish between informing and influencing, and learn to build consensus, all while polishing delivery style and overall presence.

"It was a pleasure working with you to prepare for my TEDx talk. Your suggestions and recommendations were insightful and spot-on. My presentation was significantly improved thanks to your coaching and constructive feedback."
